- This is a very challenging course. It was difficult to understand the application of the content, and the textbook was not incredibly helpful. This course is as difficult or more difficult than Real Analysis.

- I felt overwhelmed by the pace of the course. Very challenging but extremely interesting. I would only recommend this professor and this class to students that are willing to put the time and effort to succeed. everytime when student ask question, we never get what we want.

I know he don't want to just tell us the answer, but how can we possible know the answer if he never teach it in the class!

the homework and exam are much harder than the lecture.

He use simple example but not general enough to make us understand how to solve the problem

- and the homework make us feel it just totally differnt world compare with lecture and HE NEVER ANSWER THE QUESTION WHEN WE DON'T KNOW HOW TO DO THE HOMEWORK!!!!!!!!!

I mean at least you show us how to do the homework after we turn in, but everytime he just show us the simplest example again and agian. I KNOW how to do the simple one just show us how to do the disgusting one, and don't put it on the exam, PLEASE!!!!!!!!!!

Professor losev is always willing to answer questions and encourages students to go to his office hours. His

- problem sets are hard but they force you to think about very important parts of the class that deserve special attention. It is important to keep up with the class and HW!

This professor is new to teaching, and it seems as though he does not have a good understanding of the grading system within the course. He makes the problem sets incredibly challenging, and although he has

- office hours, he does not provide clear steps to learn the content or arrive at an answer in order to make it challenging for the student. He made the course very difficult, and the book did not help much. He seems to be interested and well knowledgeable of the subject, but it is not an easy course with him.
